He's widely known to millions across the country as the capricious, multi-talented writer of The Howard Stern Show, yet throughout the show's popular reign, Fred Norris has managed to remain out of the spotlight. Lately however, it seems the spotlight's beam has found its target…

By Chauncé Hayden

FRIGHTENING

FRED NORRIS

A vocal impressionist, singer and actor, Fred Norris started performing as a child as a way of getting attention. Later, he found himself working as an overnight personality on WCCC in Hartford, Connecticut. It was while at WCCC that he met infamous shock jock, Howard Stern — the two hit it off immediately, but the relationship soon broke off when Stern moved on to Detroit and Norris to WAQY in Springfield, Massachusetts. However, before departing, Stern promised that someday they'd be reunited and to Norris's surprise, Stern kept his word. While working in Washington, D.C., Stern, in need of a producer who could also write and do voices, sent for Norris and the pair have been together ever since.

In 1982 The Howard Stern Show while building an almost cult-like following, moved to WNBC-AM in New York thus allowing even more people to become familiar with Norris's outrageous impressions such as Arnold Schwarzenegger and Richard Nixon. However, due to the controversial show's flirtation for the outrageous, the ground-breaking radio program was quickly pulled off the air by then NBC president, Grant Tinker that to this day remains a bitter subject for those involved.

Down but not out, the highly rated show soon found a new home at WXRK-FM where to this day, it remains the number one program in the New York metropolitan area as well as many other major markets across the country.

Besides his duties as a writer and impressionist, Norris is also an accomplished guitarist who, while live on the air, has accompanied such great musical legends as Ray Davies of the Kinks, Leslie West of Mountain, and Roger Daltrey of the Who. In fact, these days playing guitar for Norris has skyrocketed from a mere hobby to being offered work as an opening act for some major headliners, which has led to weekend gigs — playing small night spots around the metropolitan area.

When not writing comedy for Howard Stern, this recently married transplanted New Yorker is usually spending time concentrating on honing his acting skills. Recently Norris landed the feature role of "Pete the bartender" in the film "The Hotel Manor Inn." Aside from his busy career ventures, Norris is also a serious bicycle enthusiast, as well as a fitness disciple who's compulsive quirkiness has earned him the reputation of being from another planet…namely Mars.

Chauncé Hayden: How did you get the nickname "Earth Dog?"

Fred Norris: That was something that Howard (Stern) conjured up. It's not an interesting story, but it is a necessary one. There was this guy who worked with Howard before me named Earth Dog Brett, except he wasn't really an Earth Dog, he was more the preppie type. He was the producer of Howard's show [in Washington, D.C.] before I came on.

Just for the record, how did you and Howard Stern meet?

I've known Howard since I was in college somewhere around 1978. I was doing overnights at WCCC in Hartford and Howard was the morning guy. He came in one Saturday morning and I was helping put a bunch of shit away, pulling records for him and I just started goofing around in the studio, doing voices like Jimmy Carter and he said, "Hey, that's pretty funny. Why don't we make up questions for the president on the air?" And I said, "Okay, sounds like fun." So we just started goofing around on the air and later he would call me at home at 7 in the morning after I had been up 'til 3 o'clock the night before. Howard would say, "Okay, I need you to be Howard Cosell. It was a lot of fun so I would do it. Then when he was getting ready to move to Detroit he said, "Man, someday we're going to work together again." I said to myself, "Yeah right, bullshit." He seemed like a nice, sincere guy, but sometimes the nicest people make promises — however, due to circumstances beyond their control, it ain't happening.

But in this case, he did keep his promise.

Yeah. He managed to get things going for himself in Washington, D.C. in a really big way and he needed a producer who could do more than the producer he

"I don't know what I would have done during my teenage years if I didn't have my guitar. I probably would have picked up a knife like O.J. or something."

Hoboken's Best Pt. 2

When we left our heroes, well OK ourselves, last week we were singing the praises of all the cool night-havens in lovely Hoboken, NJ. This past weekend we got the chance to visit that mini-mecca once again and we now give you our final update. The evening began with dinner at Uwe's (10th and Willow.) Our choices were the Salmon and Tandori chicken. Out of hand. Amazing. Wow. Enough said. Club mainman Dave was there as well as the amazing Uwe himself. Our second stop was one of the newest spots on the uptown scene, The Brownstone Ale House. This place is fairly narrow and thin the way a real bar is supposed to be. The woodworking that was done to create this interior has to be seen to be truly appreciated. Go check it out. What is neat about this area of town is that there are a few great bars all near each other, but it's residential and toned down from the Party-All-Night feeling of downtown. Rogo's is another good example of such a place. Mainly a sport's bar, the place offers a food menu that rivals many in taste and price. Tavern on Park is a cool bar just around the corner from there. This place has a liquor store attached to it's side-street side. Pretty smart of them seeing how on some nights the bar area is so packed that you'd need to have a reserve supply! All of these places are only one or two blocks from one another and parking is good around there. What more of an invitation do you need?

We asked Brian from the band Black Train Jack a few things this week. Things like:

a) How did the band get its name? "From The Rollins Band song Wreck-age. We were listening to the tape and heard that line and thought it would make a cool band name, " and b) What do you miss most when you're on tour? "Touring is the best thing ever, but of course we miss our girlfriends homes and families. But we meet so many new people each day that it makes up for it," aaaand c) Are you guys into Howard Stern or Rush Limbaugh? "A couple of us listen to Howard Stern if it's on. Sometimes he's funny and sometimes his show sucks. Nobody really listens to Rush, at least not seriously."

Ran into the infamous tambourine/accordion playing Marilyn the other night at Voices' Crocodile Club gig. Quite an interesting person in her own special way. She told me that she had a nervous breakdown a few years back and now "jams" with such bands as The Willies, Voices, and Who Brought the Dog by simply approaching the stage and playing her instrument in accompaniment with the band. Yeah.... O.K.

Celebrate All Things Jewish, a very diversified party planning group from Stamford, CT will be having their 4th Annual Bridal, Bar/Bat Mitzvah, Parties for all Occasions Showcase at the Parsippany Hilton Hotel this Sunday, Nov. 13th.This marvelous extravaganza features live music and entertainment with giveaways, gourmet tastings, exotic gifts for sale, Club Med Party, Direct from NYC, World famous Sardi's and Wacky Wendy. There will be opportunities to win wonderful prizes, plus free admission and parking. For more info. call (203) 322-2840.

We've got the new Black Crows CD, Amorica. We asked them if their new song, Nonfiction, was a tribute to a very famous local band. When they stopped laughing, we asked them what they liked about the South. "The South is for real. It's not fake and there's a lot of history to it," said guitarist Rich Robinson. Speaking of the Crows, we have a few of their promotional guitar pics for the first few readers who write to us with the name that they play under when doing surprise shows at small venues. You'll be given twenty minutes to complete this portion of the test. Ready. Begin.

We thought we'd ask Scott LePage from Angry Drunk Men what he likes the best about this week's cover boy, Fred Norris, since he's such a fan of this particular Martian. He replied, "I love it when Fred breaks up tragic news with the 'Jackie Laugh' tape and the Gary Puppet always makes me laugh."

Having inquiring minds that just won't stop absorbing knowledge, we also asked Dan from Lurker Park where his band got its name. "It comes from a park in East Hanover, NJ where we all lost our virginity-but not to each other." We pressed him further with - What guitar line took you the longest to figure out? "Frank spent a lot of time perfecting Spirit of Radio and Limelight by Rush." had at the time was doing. So one day Howard called and said how would you like to be my producer; you can do voices and help me put together bits.

But at the time Howard offered you a job, you already had your own radio show at WAQY in Springfield, Massachusetts. Why give up having your own radio show to be second fiddle on somebody else's show?

I was at WCCC in Hartford and I wanted a full time position but they kept describing me as interim, interim, interim. I felt that was so insulting since I'd been there for two years. Why not just say I'm full time already; you got me doing full time work! But they didn't want to do it. So when I was offered a job doing nights at WAQY for more money I took it. Plus, I felt WAQY really wanted me.

And by your ratings, that move worked out pretty well for you.

It did work out. But one month later I got the call from Howard. He said, "Hey, you want to come to Washington?" And I thought to myself, "Why didn't you call a month earlier!"

In retrospect, was making that decision to leave Springfield for Washington a difficult one?

In a way, it was.

Did you realize at the time you would be giving up your chance to have your own radio show?

That was my dilemma.

Your co-worker Billy West once said that "Fred Norris could be the number one Jock on any station in any city that he wanted." Do you agree?

That's quite a compliment. (Laughs) Billy should be my agent! That's very flattering and I accept the compliment but I don't know how true it is.

Do you ever say to yourself, "What if I turned Howard down and stayed in Springfield?"

Well I hope I wouldn't still be in Springfield. To be quite honest, I don't know if I would have stayed in radio.

Why?

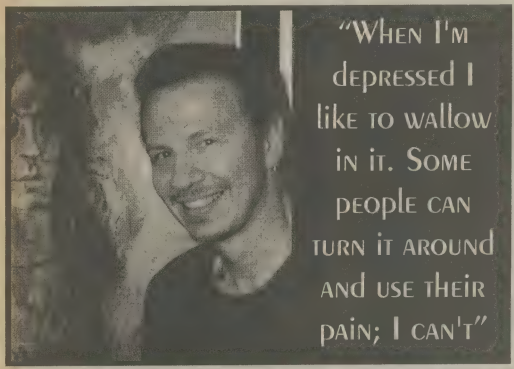
Because other than "The Howard Stern Show," radio is not very exciting. At least to me.

What was your first impression of Howard Stern?

This guy's nuts. This guy is absolutely nuts, but I liked him because he was crazy.

Of all the cast members associated with The Howard Stern Show, you've always been the most private. Why, over the years, haven't you tried to cash in, so to speak, off the show's success?

I'm just a different individual from the other people on the show. They would be the first to admit that. I've always been kind of private. What I'm most comfortable with is performing — whether it be on the radio or in plays or in films. In fact, I would love to do more acting so if anybody reading this is a casting director and wants to put me in a film, I'll play anything, psychopath, homicidal maniac, anything.



The others on the show are always kidding you on the air for being somewhat off-center. Just how off-center are you?

I'm not the kind of person who is going to be the life of the party or anything and I never was. The only time I like being the center of attention is when I'm performing. I just enjoy entertaining.

For the last 15 years your job has been to make Howard Stern funny. Exactly how hard of a job is that?

I have to be careful not to talk myself out of a job but I would say he's 98 percent funny on his own. He doesn't need that much help as far as that goes. The rest of us do whatever we can do to help. It's a privilege in that respect. It's a great place to get some of the crazy ideas in your head out.

Can you give me an example of some of those crazy ideas?

The strangest conduit that I always found is Stuttering John. Howard will send him out to interview celebrities who are baffled and bewildered by some of the questions, of which I'm proud to say I've written most of them. It hits home for example, when you're watching a news program and Stuttering John's interviewing Gennifer Flowers and he asks her if President Clinton ever used a condom. Then you read a quote in the paper from (former Clinton campaign manager) James Carville where he says,

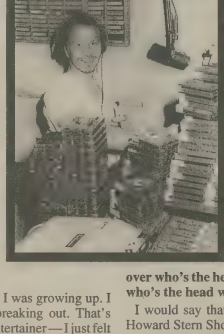
"…and this guy Stuttering John who works for Howard Stern asked Gennifer Flowers if she ever used a condom and ya know even I had to laugh." I read that and I thought to myself, "That's pretty hot stuff."

What is it that you find funnier, the questions Stuttering John asks or the answers he gets?

The whole absurdity of the fact that [Stuttering John] is going in as a reporter and he has to be addressed as a reporter. But that's really why he's there. He may ask goofy questions but why is his question any sillier or stupider than the next guy. That is what The Howard Stern Show is all about…busting stones, including our own.



Your role on the show has you pretty busy. One of your duties has you providing the voices for a number of weird characters. Which character is your favorite?

That's a tough question to answer. Today I was getting a kick out of acting like Scott (Scott Salem is The Howard Stern Show's engineer). Anyone with two ears on their head will hear that he always adds a Kaaa sound at the end of his sentences. So I'll imitate him, "I'm adjusting, Kaaa the air conditioner." And he'll just sit there giving you that look like, "what are you, Kaaa doing? You're an idiot, Kaaa. Why are you making that, Kaaa noise? I don't talk like that, Kaaa !"

When did you first become interested in mimicking the way others speak?

I used to enjoy doing celebrities when I was growing up. I was a shy kid so it was my way of breaking out. That's probably why I always wanted to be an entertainer — I just felt more comfortable being somebody else than being me.

Why?

(Laughs) Because being myself is not a lot of fun!

Another dimension you add to The Howard Stern Show is your ability to play the guitar which you have done with some of rock n' roll's greatest legends. Do you ever get intimidated or nervous when playing alongside such noted musicians?

Nervous. It's so funny, you wake up in the morning thinking, "Oh, I'm going to play with so and so today, I'm cool, I'm cool," then ten seconds before I'm going to pick up the guitar I think, "Wait a minute, that's Roger f—king Daltrey over there! What am I doing being in the same room with somebody like that?" But then you get over that and you realize that this is fun. Playing with so many great musicians is to me a great perk of the job. It really is.

Lately you've been playing in small bars throughout New York and New Jersey. At this point in your life do you view your music as a hobby or a career?

That's a good question. It makes me think of your earlier question about people on the show capitalizing on the show's name. While being part of the show does forge you a number of opportunities, it's not my motivation. It's not the reason why I'm out there. (Pausing) And I'm not really answering your question because I really don't know the answer.

Keep going, you're getting close.

I think what it comes down to is I just want to get out there and express myself. It's always been strictly for fun and as a way of relaxing. I don't know what I would have done during my teenage years if I didn't have my guitar. I probably would have picked up a knife like O.J. or something.

It's ironic. Most people begin in small clubs and work their way up to playing with the likes of Roger Daltrey. You, on the other hand, have gone from playing with Roger Daltrey to small clubs.

I've never been typical.

Recently, along with Jackie Martling and yourself another talented voice impressionist by the name of Billy West was added to the Stern cast. Has it ever been a problem where maybe two's company and three's a crowd?

I don't think so because I don't really consider Jackie a voice impressionist although Billy and I do Jackie's voice more than Jackie does. I think the whole philosophy of the show is the more the merrier.

Not to put you on the spot, but for a long time there's been some confusion over who's the head writer of the Howard Stern Show. So who's the head writer of the Howard Stern Show?

I would say that Howard Stern is the head writer of The Howard Stern Show.

That's a very safe answer.

I really do believe that. I'm not going to say that it's (Jackie) Martling I don't care how much he says that he's the head writer. Howard Stern is the head writer as far as I'm concerned. I'll leave it to Howard who he wants to call the head writer.

It seems like an enormous, if not impossible task, to be funny five days a week over a period of 15 years.

(Laughs) Actually, it's just a day and a half a week, the rest of the time I just chill. But it's a good day and a half!

How do you manage to keep your creative juices flowing on down days or days that you happen to be depressed?

I'm not very good at creating when I'm depressed. Paul Simon says he can write a great album when he's depressed but that doesn't necessarily work for me. When I'm depressed I like to wallow in it. Some people can turn it around and use their pain; I can't.

How do you keep from burning out?

I think it's the fact that you have so many talented people

MORSELS

By mike morse

Because of both my selfless quest to help the careers of fledgling journalists and my extreme laziness, I've agreed to turn this week's writing chores over to Hollywood's latest gossip queen, Tallulah Bodego. It's all yours, Tallulah!

Thank you, Michael darling. Let's get straight to the dishing...

... Last year, NBC fired Jay Leno's manager, Helen Kushnick from her post as The Tonight Show producer, and just last week, band leader Branford Marsalis announced his intention to leave the almost-popular late night chatfest. This week brings more bad news for the "I'm-no-Johnny Carson,-but-at-least-I-didn't-hire-a-lump-like-Ed MacMahon-for-a-sidekick" comic. Leno's chin has quit the show over a bitter salary dispute. The chin maintains that since it makes up 53% of the genial talk show host, it should receive substantially more than the rest of Leno's body. The chin has just signed with the William Morris Agency and is reportedly set to star as Mount Everest in Cliffhanger 2. Nothing of interest happened to innocent-until-eventually-proven-guilty jailbird O. J. Simpson this week, but it is now an FCC law that the former football star-turned-ginsu-expert be mentioned at least once in every article written in the United States, Canada, and Venezuela. Venezuela could not be reached for comment.

... Is it just me, or is Speed hunk Keanu Reeves the worst actor in the history of the world? Most people with an I.Q. over 20 I've asked agree. My good friend Bobby DeNiro had this to say: "If you cut off his legs with a chainsaw, Keanu couldn't act like he's bleeding." Coincidentally, DeNiro has just signed on to portray Reeves in the upcoming Martin Scorsese film Keanu. To prepare for the role, the chameleon-like superstar is scheduled to have a facelift and a pre-frontal lobotomy.

... Here's a little-known piece of trivia from the Hollywood archives: In the classic film Casablanca, Humphrey Bogart's character never says, "Play it again, Sam" to his piano player. What he actually says is, "Jesus! These crabs are driving me nuts! Sam, stop banging on that damn piano and go get me some ointment!"

... Macy's Day Float-lookalike Roseanne recently announced her engagement to her former bodyguard. Message to Rosie: Sorry, funny lady, but we just don't care any more. After your non-stop barrage of stories about childhood incest/mental illness/prostitution/spousal abuse/giving up your child for adoption/nasty divorces/tattoos on your ass/singing the National Anthem like a harbor seal in heat/and off-the-deep-end temper tantrums, about the only thing you could do to pique our interest would be to come out at half-time during the Super Bowl, strip naked, paint yourself red, white, and blue with paint rollers, then open a six-pack of beer bottles with the crack of your butt.

This is Tallulah saying, "Keep Gossiping!"

Cadillac Bar

by Dylan Ross

There's a new reason to go to Hoboken and it's not because construction on the Lincoln and Holland tunnels make it difficult to get to the city. Ladies and gentlemen, I present to you The Cadillac Bar. If you haven't been there since the recent change in management, I highly recommend stopping in.

The Cadillac Bar is connected to two of Hoboken's most legendary establishments, Boo Boo's Funkadelic Lounge and the historic Clam Broth House Restaurant. The three separate atmospheres conveniently provide a lot of options under one roof.

Boo Boo's Funkadelic Lounge is an old time Hoboken hangout traditionally favored by local artists and musicians. I always enter by Boo Boo's because I like to begin my night in the dark, cozy lounge with its big bar, pool table and dance floor.

Boo Boo's features live music every Wednesday and every other Thursday, usually of the Modern Rock or alternative variety. On Alternating Thursdays is the "Underground Groove" which is a true underground dance party with NY DJ's spinning progressive acid jazz and hip-hop. The rest of the week the music at Boo Boo's is mainly Modern Rock spun from the yellow 1938 Packard taxi cab that they use for a DJ booth.

If you continue walking past the Packard Taxi, you will very quickly find yourself standing inside The Cadillac Bar. The Cadillac Bar is like a Hard Rock Cafe in Hoboken. Not quite as dark as Boo Boo's, there are cool antiques all over the place, fish tanks, a pool table, two bars, twelve satellite TVs, and its own DJ booth.

Every Monday The Cadillac has Monday Night Football. There is a huge free buffet, drink specials galore and beer company giveaways up the yin yang.

"Tuesday Night Live" is the only night The Cadillac has live music. The bands are usually alternative rock but don't be too surprised if you show up one Tuesday and the band is playing the blues and guzzling one of the many Tuesday night drink specials.

Friday and Saturday is the "Hard Alternative Jam." Make sure you get there before 11:00 p.m. on Friday and Saturday nights because the line at the door can get pretty long.

Wednesdays at The Cadillac are my favorite. Mike Wiggins, aka "DJ Wiggs," famous for packing the dance floor at 159 and wanted in 15 states, spins the best alternative music.

Thursday night is Ladies Night and every Thursday and Friday from 5:00 to 8:00 p.m., The Cadillac Bar throws one of the best "Happy Hour" parties I have ever seen. There is a free buffet table overflowing with clams and muscles and lots of other good stuff from the Clam Broth House which is just through the door at the end of the bar next to the DJ Booth.

The Clam Broth House is one of Hoboken's most famous landmarks. Elegent in its simplicity, the wooden tables and seafaring motif make you hungry for lobster and calimari before you even look at the menu. The Clam Broth House is open every day for lunch, dinner and late night munchies. Every weekend after the dinner crowd has gone, the Clam Broth House moves aside some of the tables, kicks up the music and opens its doors to offer yet another great partying atmosphere.

The Cadillac Bar, Boo Boo's Funkadelic Lounge and The Clam Broth House are all located on Newark Street in Hoboken just one block from the PATH train and the biggest outdoor parking lot in Hoboken. There's something here for everyone so don't wait for the next time they close the Lincoln and Holland Tunnels to make a detour to Hoboken's hippest new nightspot.

around. It's like there's always somebody there to inspire you. Actually, the person you want to ask that question of is the person who obviously has the most pressure on him and that's Howard.

What about the show's only female, Robin Quivers? Is there more pressure on her than the rest of you?

Robin is quote, unquote the "newsperson." I don't know if I would call her as warped as the rest of us. But if she wasn't warped to a certain degree, I don't think she would be part of this crew. As much of a lady as she is, she's definitely got a couple of strange electrical hook-ups.

Did you read Howard's book, "Private Parts?"

I read portions of it. It's hard to read something like that after you've lived it. Not that I've lived Howard's entire life but I've been around for a lot of it. It's funny, I was just reading ["Private Parts] recently and it just opened up such memories for me, some good and some of them absolutely horrible. But I'm just too close to it to be objective.

In a few months Howard will begin filming a movie based on "Private Parts." Do you know who will be playing the part of Fred Norris?

Hopefully it will be somebody good.

Is there a chance that you will play yourself?

I have no idea. I think I'm going to have to buy a few of those paperback versions of "Private Parts" and send in a few of those entry forms (Writers note: Each "Private Parts" paperback contains an entry form where one lucky person will be given a part in the movie). But at this point there hasn't been any talk about me playing me or that there will even be a me.

Are you saying that there's a possibility that you won't even be represented in the film?

Maybe, maybe not. A lot of times when they make these films they composite characters, so who knows. Maybe they'll combine us all into one Billy, Jackie, Fred character where this one guy is a total maniac or something.

Part of what makes the Howard Stern Show successful is the outrageous spontaneity that often occurs while on the air. However, has anything ever occurred on the air that upset you so much it kept you awake at night?

(Long pause) Nothing that I can think of. I don't think you can really regret anything.

No guilt at all?

No. I don't anyway. Because I think that anything that is done on the show is done with the spirit of having fun. If something does go wrong I suppose that's part of the natural drama that happens in a real live situation. There are things that happen that you can't always control. I mean sure you may have some things that shake you up from time to time like somebody getting physically hurt — once we had a girl pass out in the studio — but that's really it…(laughs) Unless you can refresh my memory! Oh, wait, I did regret getting drunk at my bachelor party and falling down on my face and having the whole country know about it! That I felt stupid about.

What were you drinking that night?

Tequila, but it wasn't my usual brand.

Speaking of your bachelor party, you recently got married to a woman whom you met on a blind date set up by the show. Isn't it ironic that you found your wife through what was originally nothing more than a comedy bit?

It was meant to be nothing more than a total goof. One day a girl didn't show up for what was supposed to be "Fat Girl" dial-a-date, so we were on the spot. I think it was (Stern producer) Gary [Dell'Abate] who suggested they put me on dial-a-date. I was feeling kind of goofy that day so I said, "What the F—k."

That's so unlike you.

Exactly! To this day I can't explain it except that it was just meant to be. It's like going up to the same person every day and asking for ten dollars and 364 days of the year they say, "No!" Then for some reason on that 365th day they say, "Would you like two fives or ten singles." It's quite strange. Sort of like winning the lottery.

Is your wife a fan of Howard Stern?

Yes. She's a good person with a great sense of humor and I think that was what initially attracted me to her. Actually, I think she has a better sense of humor than I do.

Howard has announced that he plans on quitting radio within the next year and a half. Where does that leave you?

That leaves me without a job with Howard Stern. What I'll try to do is develop interests in other areas and hopefully other people will develop an interest in me.

Do you believe Howard when he says his radio career is coming to an end?

I say there's a little truth to everything. I have to think of it in the sense that it may be true. That's the reality of life. There are people who get to a certain point where they say I don't want to do this any more. It doesn't hold the same luster that it once did. You read about that happening to people who are successful and you wonder how they could walk away from it.

Are we talking about Howard Stern or Michael Jordan?

Michael Jordan is a perfect example. Maybe that's disparaging to Howard but Howard could be like the Michael Jordan of radio or the Johnny Carson of radio. Howard has lasted a lot longer than most people ever thought he'd last and that is really a testament to his ability and his will power to re-energize himself.

Will we ever see The Fred Norris Show?

(Pausing) I don't know man, that's a scary thought. I don't think I could do what Howard does but I would like to try other things, whether it be acting or music.

If you had a choice between winning a Grammy, an Oscar or having your own national number one radio show which would you choose and why?

How about my health. (Pausing) I think I would want to win an Oscar. It would be great hanging out with all those crazy mother f—kers. That would be a blast. (Again pausing) Oh, can't I get them all?

JENN'S GIANTS

By Jennifer Epstein

The New York Giants' visit to Texas Stadium was even uglier than anticipated. The Dallas Cowboys trampled all over the Giants, leaving in their dust a score of 38-10.

With their sixth straight loss, the Giants drop to 3-6, while the Cowboys dominate the NFC East at 8-1.

Things got pretty ugly out there, but no one really expected the Giants to even come close to the Cowboys anyway. After all, Dallas is disputably the best team in football right now.

The Giants' major problem was no different than it had been the last several weeks - lack of offensive execution. The Cowboys' defense continually stuffed Rodney Hampton. Aside from the non-existent running game, Dave Brown was horrendous in passing. Before being pulled in the 4th quarter, Brown finished 4-17 for 56 yards.

At halftime, the Giants were down 14-3, but the Cowboys never stopped. In fact, when Kent Graham came in in the 4th quarter, the Cowboys continued to blitz, with well over a two-touchdown lead. Emmitt Smith was finally taken out of the game late in the 4th, but not before he tallied up 162 rushing yards.

The Giants have become such a disappointment these last few weeks that it's questionable how many more wins this team is capable of this season. In those remaining games are Philadelphia (7-2) and Dallas again.

But before them, the Giants will face Arizona at home and Houston, Washington and Cleveland - all away.

Looking ahead to next week, the Arizona Cardinals (3-6) are better than their record shows. They are certainly not the gladiators that coach Buddy Ryan expected them to be, but they are tough; well at least their defense is.

The Giants must win their next three games. No one is talking about playoffs here, these are emotionally needed wins - for respect. This team has already been written off for the season by most, but there are a few more wins the Giants are capable of achieving.

Kent Graham generated a decent offensive drive late in the 4th leading to a Howard Cross touchdown. Though Dave Brown didn't throw any costly interceptions, he looked his worst against the Cowboys. Maybe he does need a breather.

The New York Giants eventually have to win. I believe it will happen this week against Arizona. A slim Giants' victory 17-14.

Steppin' Out Under The Stars
Your Outlook This Week

Aries (March 21-April 19). You'll have to work like a banshee to keep up. Changes cause even more confusion. Postpone all social engagements. Paperwork should go well.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). A strong partner can help you maintain your position. You'll be at your finest. Someone may try to talk you into buying something you don't need! Relax with your family.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). A club meeting or sporting event could interfere with your work. You may have to put in extra hours. You'll be sharp. Push yourself to finish everything on your list.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Be alert and avoid a boss's anger. There could be good changes to the agenda. Meetings should go well. Plan to relax.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Travel plans may be thwarted, you'll be lucky to get much of anything done. There's tough competition. Social activities dominate. A flirtation could lead to a difficult situation.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). If you need a loan, apply! Travel will be complicated. You're lucky in practical matters. Take careful notes; you may need to prove what was said, later. Expect changes.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You may be pushed almost too far. This is the best time for submitting loan or grant applications. Travel should go very well.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Although you're probably right, don't push the point. The competition will be more subtle. Find ways to save. Call a favorite family member long-distance.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Steal brief moments to be with your loved one. Your days are strictly for working. You've had enough, and done enough, to warrant fun time.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). There may be a semi-crisis at home. Romance should dominate. If you're not already in love, go to club meetings and social action groups to interview applicants.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You'll do best to stay home in the evening and take care of practical matters. It should be easy to find a good conversation — that could at last instigate true love.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). You may have to take on extra work. If you can't get away, at least figure out how and where you're going next. Domestic matters will take top priority.

Words of Wisdom

• Be wary of people who are rude or malicious under the guise of being "honest."

• Struggling for a living may be difficult, but the education that it provides is invaluable.

• Gratitude is a quality that is greatly undervalued these days.

Ask Allison

Q: My girlfriend just recently lost a lot of weight and she looks great. The problem is that she knows it and shows it off. She used to be conservative and now she dresses like a tramp, wearing tiny mini skirts and low cut shirts. It's really bothering me and I almost wish she was still fat. What do you think I should do?

A: Shame on you. Your girlfriend just did something millions of people struggle to do every day. Let her get used to her new figure because she deserves to feel good about it. You, on the other hand, should feel lucky that someone as selfish as you are still has the girl.

Michael Bolton

By the end of November, Michael Bolton figures he'll have spent seven months of 1994 on the road. With that in mind, he's figuring '95 will be a year to " shift back into creative mode and write."

Coming off a chain of hit albums, he says the next disc "will have to knock people's socks off. It'll have to be staggering." When will the next Bolton record come out? He's not certain, but he reckons fall of '95.

Bolton has other things on his mind besides music. If he has his way, next year will mark his entry into Film Stardom. He's come up with three filmic storylines, one of which is already in completed script form, with starring roles for himself. And he says, "I'd like to produce — not direct — them, and write the music for them."

The singer tells us he intends to "seriously shop" his nascent movie talents come January. As far as acting, he says, "I'm prepared to the extent that I've spent plenty of time on camera, and I've had a lot of life experiences. If the film is ready ... I'll study hard to prepare for it. I strongly feel the time is right."

Bolton adds, "It's exciting, a challenge — a natural area for me." He assures, "I'm certainly not going to do anything that would be disturbing for the audience I've developed through the years. I wouldn't push anything on them."

It's now open war between the Former Prince and Warner Bros. Records — at least on Symbol Man's side. He's been saying that his much-publicized WB deal may have been a way to lock him into "institutionalized slavery" — and he appears on his "Dolphin" video with the word "slave" written across his face.

Former Prince, as readers of this column know, wants to release albums at will -- like he released his "Most Beautiful Girl" single, on Bellmark/NPG. That's NPG, as in Former Prince's New Power Generation label. Warner Bros., which thinks it has Prince tied up contractually, naturally believes he ought to release through the diskery.

Former Prince's Warner Bros. deal was hyped as being worth $100 million. Industry experts estimated it as being actually worth more like $35 million. Either way, it's hard to fit it into the "slavery" category.

And under the heading of "Huh?" ... Here is Guns N' Roses member Gilby Clarke's explanation of why he wanted his "Pawn Shop Guitars" solo disc to be released on vinyl (bright orange, in fact) as well as on CD: "I don't know if it's 'old school' or what, but the records I grew up with, all my favorites, were on (vinyl). ... I don't know how to make records for CDs. I know how to make a record for a record."

MOVIEGUIDE

MARISA TOMEI

ONLY YOU

Director Norman Jewison struggles to recapture the appeal of his "Moonstruck" with this romantic comedy that also has strong references to "Roman Holiday." The upshot is a corny fable that works best as a travelogue. Marisa Tomei stars as a giddy school teacher who dumps her yuppie fiance and runs off to Italy in search of her true love. Robert Downey Jr. plays a traveling shoe salesman who competes for the position of Mr. Right. Preposterous and silly events unfold amid the magnificent Italian scenery. (PG)

THE SPECIALIST

Flimsy action adventure starring Sylvester Stallone as an explosive expert hired by a femme fatale (Sharon Stone) to execute criminals who killed her parents. The formula story lacks credibility and it sags with scenes played out in bad taste. In contrast to the various explosions, the romantic interludes fizzle and the script is laced with howlers. Rod Steiger hams it up as a Cuban gangster. James Woods, however, manages some good moments as a former CIA operative. (R)

THE PUPPET MASTERS

Overly familiar sci-fi horror tale of slimy alien creatures who turn people into controllable zombies. The invasion begins in a small Iowa town (where else?) and the story initially offers a decent amount of suspense. But the film eventually overloads with routine action devices and tension is dissipated. Donald Sutherland heads the cast as a government agent assigned to stem the attack. Also with Eric Thal and Julie Warner. (R)

JOHN CUSACK

BULLETS OVER BROADWAY

Writer-director Woody Allen hits the target with this rib-tickling, backstage farce set in the Runyonesque theatrical world of the '20s. Allen does not appear on screen. But his typical neurotic character is effectively portrayed by John Cusack as an idealistic playwright who compromises his "artistic" talent to accommodate some gangsters. The ensemble cast has merry fun with the inspired material. Dianne Wiest is a scream as a fading stage prima donna, and Chazz Palminteri is delightful as a thug with talent for writing dramatic dialogue. It's Woody at his satirical best. (PG)

MASTERSON AND BENBEN

RADIOLAND MURDERS

A serial murderer stalks a network radio show in this frantic comedy that's long on energy but comes up short in the wit department. Set in 1939, the dreadful concoction is guided by producer George Lucas of "Star Wars" fame. But such talent fails to work here as the wild array of unfocused characters and unclever sight gags demonstrate. Brian Benben stars as a program writer who struggles to reconcile with his estranged wife (Mary Stuart Masterson). George Burns appears in a brief role. (PG)

I LIKE IT LIKE THAT

She has little money, her husband's in jail, yet she plods on with dauntless resolve in her tumultuous Bronx neighborhood. Lauren Velez portrays this scrappy Latino character with gusto and the right amount of bright humor. Debuting writer-director Darnell Martin presents all the proper flourishes, based on her own experiences, in this gritty romantic comedy that touches the heart. Also with Jon Seda and Rita Moreno (R)

IMAGINARY CRIMES

Fine performances dominate this modest story of two young sisters who struggle to cope with their likable but somewhat dishonest father. Fairuza Balk is in a touching role as the adolescent who realizes the shortcomings of her con-man parent. And Harvey Keitel, casting aside his familiar tough-guy persona, expertly portrays the man whose dreams are unfulfilled. Elisabeth Moss also is notable as the younger sister. Set in the 1960s and based on Sheila Ballantyne's acclaimed semi-autobiographical novel. (R)

RICK MORANIS

LITTLE GIANTS

In predictable fashion, an underdog peewee football team takes on the mean, formidable all-stars for the small-town championship title. This small fry sports film follows the now tired formula of "The Bad News Bears" and "The Mighty Ducks." The misfit squad has the usual roster that includes kids who are overweight, klutzy and shy. They take on their slick opponents with a typical routine of slapstick antics. Rick Moranis and Ed O'Neill star as brothers who are rival coaches. (PG)

JOHN TRAVOLTA

PULP FICTION

Smart dialogue, sensational acting and a clever screenplay converge in this bold, inventive gangster film expertly written and directed by Quentin Tarantino. Constructed as three episodes that eventually interlock, the violent and intimate story tells of various low-life killers and drug dealers in the Los Angeles area. Samuel L. Jackson and John Travolta are terrific as brutal hit men. Bruce Willis, Uma Thurman and Harvey Keitel also are excellent in well-drawn roles. Tarantino presents a fresh, audacious style of movie making that is thoroughly mesmerizing and entertaining. (R)
